

Ditidaht First Nation's Comprehensive Community Plan

What is a Comprehensive Community Plan?

A way of moving from ideas to actions...

A Comprehensive Community Plan (CCP) is a document that the community works on together. A CCP is a way of gathering information and discovering community direction. The plan sets out the goals and objectives of the community and then identifies the actions needed to achieve the goals and objectives. A CCP sets out the steps that need to be completed to reach a desired future.

Why Plan?

By planning, we are agreeing as a community on actions we can take to strengthen and sustain the cultural, social, economic and environmental wellbeing of our people, our air, lands, waters and resources.

The purpose of the Comprehensive Community Plan is to provide direction on moving forward as a united people on issues such as current and future land uses, economic development, education, resources, and growth. The Plan will also be used by adjacent regional districts, nearby municipalities, the province, and the federal government, and private groups to understand and work with Ditidaht First Nation on shared concerns.

What's in a CCP?

Whatever the community wants in the Plan!

The Plan can look at a wide range of topics, including:

- Future land uses
- Economic development
- Environmental protection
- Community involvement
- Infrastructure
- Relationships with other agencies and levels of government
- Health and well-being
- Education
- Resources
- Culture
- Career development
- Community life

That is, anything the community wants to see covered in the CCP will be included in the CCP! A CCP is also a “living” document: this means that it can change over time as circumstances evolve or new opportunities are presented to the community.

WE ARE AT THE BEGINNING...

We are just at the start of the Comprehensive Community Plan process, and we need your help.

There are questions to the right, and we are interested in your comments.

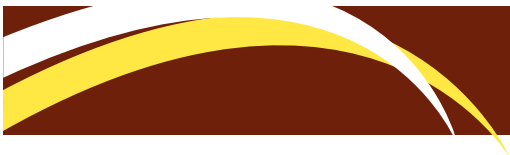

Your responses will help to shape the CCP and the future of the community.

Looking at the Future...

Imagine it is 2035 – 20 years from now.

- What's new for DFN?
- What has been the greatest success over the past 20 years?

What should not change in the future – what are those things that you treasure about DFN and the lands?

WE ARE AT THE BEGINNING...

We are just at the start of the Comprehensive Community Plan process, and we need your help.

There are questions to the right, and we are interested in your comments.

Your responses will help to shape the CCP and the future of the community.

Do you have any ideas on getting youth and Elders involved in the Comprehensive Community Plan?

Is there an economic development activity/social program/community activity you would like DFN to take a look at?

What is your top priority for DFN?

Thank you for your time.

If you have questions or comments...

Talk to Paul Sieber - 250.754.3333 or email paulcomm@ditidaht.ca